

A Giant Catapult And The Thames Estuary: Our Latest Roundup Of Exhibitions

BY TABISH KHAN

Looking for a dose of culture? Want to know what's hot on London's exhibition scene? Read on.

A GIANT CATAPULT: A giant catapult is ready to fire the Earth right across New Bond Street. This colossal sculpture is in keeping with Lorenzo Quinn's style of going big in scale and heavy on symbolism. His completely over the top style does divide people, but his works are always superbly crafted and visually stunning. Lorenzo Quinn: Actions Not Words at Halcyon Gallery, 144-146 New Bond Street, W1S 2PF. Until 22 December, free. ★★★★★ (Monday-Sunday)

BLINDING THEATRES: Theatres are photographed in black and white with a long exposure so the architecture draws the eye, while the screen becomes a brilliant white like a portal into another world. It's taken over the length of a film and a true reflection of life today where so much visual culture is consumed every day very little is remembered – who hasn't started watching a film, and halfway through realised we've seen it before? Hiroshi Sugimoto: Snow White at Marian Goodman, 5-8 Lower John Street, W1F 9DY. Until 22 December, free. ★★★★★ (Tuesday-Saturday)

MARILYN & CACTI: Two Andy Warhol works, depicting Marilyn Monroe and a gun, face each other across a room full of cacti. Throw in a mirror by Roy Lichtenstein and we have ourselves an impressive slice of Americana in the heart of Mayfair. Marilyn, Flowers, Lips, Gun, Mirror, Cactus at Ordovas, 25 Savile Row, W1S 2ER. Until 16 December, free. ★★★★★ (Tuesday-Saturday)
