Lucian Freud's Daughter Offers an Intimate Portrait – Freud's daughter Rose Boyt opens up about working with her truculent father ahead of an exhibition about his process titled "In the Studio" at Ordovas in London. (Some of Boyt's portraits of her father at work are in the show.) From his penchant for strawberry ice cream to his habit of stabbing himself in the leg with a paintbrush if a sitting did not go well, Boyt offers unique insight into the legendary painter, for whom she felt both "angry and exhilarated" about posing nude.
