

Michel Roux
We should feed
spices to babies

Interview page 23

Lisa Armstrong
The new anti-ageing
beauty brew

Style page 27

Free inside tomorrow
The Walking Workout
with Joanna Hall

See page 30 for more details

The Daily Telegraph

telegraph.co.uk

I feel like I'm on telly, says Hillary Clinton's Cumbrian relative

By Rachel Edwards

AS HILLARY CLINTON'S CUMBRIAN relative, Philip, has been named in her memoirs, she has written about her family history.

Philip, 62, who lives in the village of Farncliffe, near Carlisle, says he has never been involved in the campaign because he is not a member of the Labour Party.

"I suppose I should have been involved in some way to be accurate to my family and mine," he says. "But I'm not a member of the party."

The first of Philip's memoirs, 20 years of his life, is due to be published next month. It is a memoir of his life in the north of England, from his childhood in the north to his time in the south of England, from his childhood in the north to his time in the south of England.

Philip, 62, who lives in the village of Farncliffe, near Carlisle, says he has never been involved in the campaign because he is not a member of the Labour Party.

"I suppose I should have been involved in some way to be accurate to my family and mine," he says. "But I'm not a member of the party."

The first of Philip's memoirs, 20 years of his life, is due to be published next month. It is a memoir of his life in the north of England, from his childhood in the north to his time in the south of England.

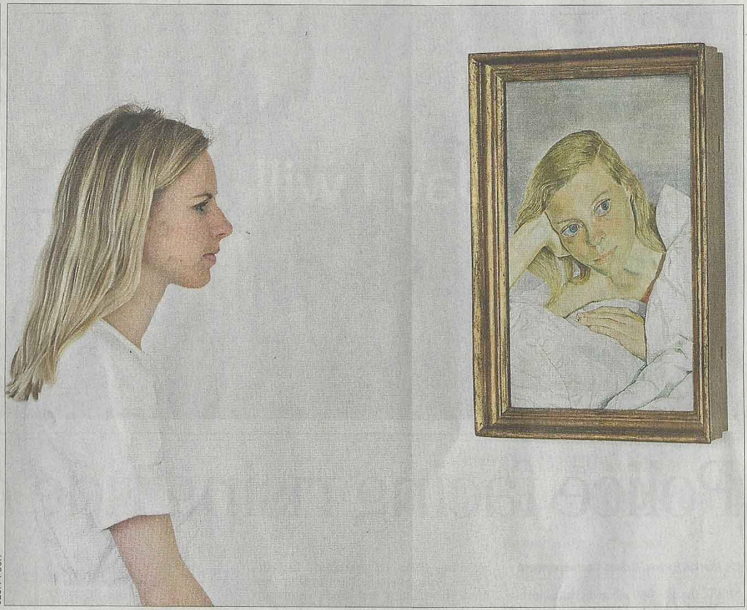

Philip, 62, who lives in the village of Farncliffe, near Carlisle, says he has never been involved in the campaign because he is not a member of the Labour Party.

Philip, 62, who lives in the village of Farncliffe, near Carlisle, says he has never been involved in the campaign because he is not a member of the Labour Party.

"I suppose I should have been involved in some way to be accurate to my family and mine," he says. "But I'm not a member of the party."

The first of Philip's memoirs, 20 years of his life, is due to be published next month. It is a memoir of his life in the north of England, from his childhood in the north to his time in the south of England.

Philip, 62, who lives in the village of Farncliffe, near Carlisle, says he has never been involved in the campaign because he is not a member of the Labour Party.

Wife study Freud portraits on show

Portraits by Lucian Freud of his second wife, Lady Caroline Blackwood, have gone on display for the first time in Britain. The paintings, which span six years of their life, show Lady Caroline from age 19 onwards, as she fell in love with Freud and eloped to Paris. The paintings are on show free at Ordoval, a Savile Row gallery, until August 1.

Hannah Furness