

8 Outstanding Summer Shows in London, From Dazzling Bridget Rileys to a Survey of Invisible Art

 Email  Print  Save  Like 14  Tweet 6  +1 0  Pin it

 View Slideshow

Carsten Höller's "The Invisible" (1998) in "Invisible: Art About the Unseen 1957-2012" at the Hayward Gallery

by Judd Tully

Published: June 29, 2012

“Calder in India” at Ordovas, 25 Saville Row, through August 3

A first-time-in-the-West view of eight of the nine sculptures Calder created during a three-month sojourn in India in 1954 make this precise and historical exhibition one of the more exotic samplings in Mayfair. Fantastic mobiles and stabiles, including “Franji Pani” in painted aluminium sheet and steel wire from January 1955 and “Guava” from the same year, top the entries that originally came about by the patronage of the artist’s Indian hosts, Kamalini, Gautam, and Gira Sarabhai.

Recent Activity

 Louis Vuitton to Sprout Yayoi Kusama's Spots Worldwide Through Special Pop-Up Shops | Artinfo
82 people recommend this.

 German Projection Artists Turn Sydney Opera House Into Epic Fluttering, Crumbling Video Art Piece | ...
One person listened to this.

 Norman Foster's Sperone Westwater Gallery, A Popular Critics' Punching Bag, Wins Belated RIBA Award

 Child Artist Aelita Andre: Channeling Pollock Part 3